Career in Congress.*Ohio Representative Says that Letters from President Roosevelt and Secretary Taft and Conference with Secretary Garfield Helped to Influence His Action—Insists that a Clean Ticket Be Named.

Cleveland, Sept. 3.—Congressman Theodore Burton, for six terms the Twenty-first Ohio's Representative in Congress, going there by an overwhelming vote of the people of the East Side of the city of Cleveland, to-day announced that he would yield to the demands of the people of Cleveland and oppose Tom L. Johnson for the mayoralty.

For a week the demand that he sacrifice his career in Congress and in the nation's affairs to the duty of redeeming Cleveland to the Republicans has been reiterated day after day, thousands signing petitions asking him to accept the nomination to be made next Saturday.

In announcing to-day that he would accept the nomination, all other candidates having waived their right to consideration should he accept, the Congressman declared the delegation must be elected fairly, must nominate a clean ticket, and adopt a platform clearly showing that no alliance exists between the Republican party and the traction interests opposed to Tom Johnson's three-cent fare lines.

These demands he enumerated in his letter, which closes with the declaration that letters from President Roosevelt and Secretary Taft and conferences with Secretary Garfield led him to abandon his Congressional career for the fight against Johnson.

GEN. GROSVENOR RETICENT.*Laconic on All Subjects and Silent on American Politics.

London, Sept. 3.—Gen. Grosvenor, of Ohio, who is spending a few days in London, was in a reticent mood when asked as to his plans. He said he hadn't any.

"Are you going to Ireland?" asked the correspondent.

"I don't know," responded the ex-Congressman.

"Are you going to return to Congress?" asked the correspondent.

"I am not talking on that subject," responded the general.

"What are the prospects of Republican success?"

"Very good," responded the noted prognosticator on probable results.

"Who will be the Republican nominee for President?" asked the correspondent.

"I haven't anything to say on that, or any other political topic at present," responded the general.

CRAZY MAN KILLS PRISONER.*Commits Murder Within Hour After Being Sent to Jail.

Connersville, Ind., Sept. 3.—Harry Robinson was committed to jail to-day as insane, and soon after he had been registered he killed Austin Ford and assaulted Charles Ring, two prisoners.

When he was first committed he was allowed the privileges of the corridor. After he had been there for an hour he became violent and attacked Ford and Ring. Ring ran to his cell, locking the door against further attack. Robinson beat Ford with his fists, only leaving him to return with cursors, lamps and other missiles, with which he renewed the attack. The cries of other prisoners aroused the attention of the police, who overpowered Robinson.

FAIR DIRECTOR BANKRUPT.*Robert H. Sexton Files Petition at Norfolk—Has No Assets.

Norfolk, Va., Sept. 3.—Robert H. Sexton, director of congresses and special events at the Jamestown Exposition, to-day filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy, placing his liabilities at $3,263. His assets are given as naught.

Sexton was connected with the St. Louis Fair. A business venture in St. Louis was unsuccessful. His creditors are in Baltimore and St. Louis.

SCANDAL IN FIRE DEPARTMENT*Pittsburg's Chief Exonerated on Charge of Shirking Duty.

Pittsburg, Pa., Sept. 3.—A scandal in the Pittsburg fire department was aired here this afternoon in an open hearing presided over by Mayor Guthrie. It had been charged that firemen under Assistant Fire Chief Burton J. Cawley had shirked their duty at a fire on August 22, which destroyed $15,000 worth of property and injured many people, including Cawley himself.

The East End Mantel and Tile Company, whose place had suffered the most, made the charges, and it was intimated that this firm had some time ago contributed $5 to the firemen's fund of Pittsburg when much more had been expected; that the firemen refused to accept this small contribution and were very slow in getting to the fire at that place and very careless when they did get there, the inference being that the fire ladders were getting even.

There was nothing proven at the hearing save that the firemen had not collected the $5 offered, and Cawley, with his firemen, was exonerated.

GOES TO MARRY LILUOKALANI.*Prince of Tahiti Will Lead Former Hawaiian Ruler to Altar.

San Francisco, Sept. 3.—Prince Ari'i of Tahiti arrived to-day on his way to Honolulu to marry ex-Queen Liliuokalani of Hawaii. The prince, who weighs 300 pounds, is to remain here until word is received from Queen Lili.

Upon his arrival he was reticent concerning the approaching marriage, although he confirmed the announcement that the ex-Queen is to be his bride.

Many years ago, when the prince was not so fat or so well provided with the world's goods as he is to-day, a romance sprang up between him and Lili, and the prince is now going to marry the woman he then learned to love.

The ex-Queen still has much of her one-time prestige among her own people. She also has a fat bank account, and manages to enjoy life.

Traveling Companion, Said to Have Aggravated Illness to Recover from Which He Went to Europe.
Kept in Stateroom Under Guard.

New York, Sept. 3.—"Florrie" Sullivan, Tammany leader of the Eighth assembly district, returned to-day, from a health-seeking trip to Europe, in so bad shape mentally that he will never be able again to cast a vote in his political ball-wick.

He went stark mad on Monday morning when the Kronprinz Wilhelm, on which he was a passenger, was within 700 miles of this port, and made an effort to jump into the sea.

He had been under constant surveillance from the moment he boarded the ship at Bremen, and although he is tall and broad and strong, he was no match for the stalwart stewards who were assigned to keep him in order.

Sullivan's condition is believed to be in part due to the shock consequent upon the death of Robert E. Pinkerton, his traveling companion, who expired suddenly while at sea bound for Europe.

The ship's doctor reported that Sullivan was in very bad shape physically; that he had suffered a nervous breakdown which necessitated constant attention.

For most of the trip Sullivan was confined to his stateroom. His condition was such as to cause much anxiety to his friends.

The body of Robert E. Pinkerton reached New York to-day on board the steamship Bremen.

SCHUM SLAYER IS IDENTIFIED*Burglar Killed by New Yorker Murderer of Brooklyn Widow.*Jewelry of Victim Found Among Effects of Hoffman, Who Also Slew Sophie Heckler.

New York, Sept. 3.—Henry Hoffman, the burglar who was shot and killed early on last Friday by Charles Verrill, as Hoffman tried to rob his home, and who also identified as the murderer of Sophie Heckler, also murdered Mrs. Lena Schum, a widow, who lived at 1090 Flushing avenue, Brooklyn, according to the police.

The detectives who worked on the Heckler murder accidentally ran across the identification of the murderer of Mrs. Schum while trying to find an owner for some of the stolen jewelry found in Hoffman's suit case, which was found at the furnished room house of Mrs. Gunther, at 24 Third avenue.

Detective Hawkins, of the Brooklyn detective bureau, who was working on the Schum murder, brought to Manhattan to-day a young woman named Minnie Springer, who was familiar with Mrs. Schum's jewelry, and who lived with her up to August 15. Miss Springer was able to describe Mrs. Schum's jewelry to Inspector McCafferty, and the police had no trouble in picking out the articles described by her.

Parisian Gowns on One Trip—Con-

Puts Through Parisian Gowns.

New York, Sept. 3.—The customs officials believe that they have uncovered a syndicate of smugglers, who have within the last thirty years brought into this port more than $1,000,000 dutiable goods.

They believe that by the arrest of a dapper, thin-voiced young man who arrived this afternoon aboard the German Lloyd steamship Kronprinz Wilhelm, they have knocked the syndicate to smithereens. There never was a cooler or more self-confident chap, Col. John M. Bishop, the deputy surveyor, remarked, overtaken with the goods on since the establishment of the customs house.

The audacious young person is William T. Hardy, who has a dressmaking establishment at 35 West Thirty-first street. He was accompanied by Burton Baldwin, who occupied the same cabin with him, and who was interested in his business.

Twenty-eight Parisian Gowns.

The customs officials had heard of Mr. Hardy before. About a year ago he came to this port with four or five other men, presumably interested in the smuggling game, with twenty-eight Parisian gowns. The other men declared themselves to be foreign residents, and as such they were entitled to bring in larger quantities of foreign-made stuff than a mere American traveler.

They did bring in most of Mr. Hardy's gowns. It is said that Mr. Hardy promised a certain percentage of the graft. He didn't make good with one of the men and this man put his case before Deputy Surveyor Bishop. A few minutes after the baggage of the suspected men had been dumped on the pier, it was turned inside out.

Incidentally, the delicate Mr. Hardy and his shipmate were also overhauled.

Wound in Thirty Yards of Lace.

Wound around the body of Mr. Hardy was thirty yards of hand-made lace valued at about $25 a yard. He accepted the exposure with smiles, although he had declared immediately before he was compelled to strip himself that on his honor as a gentleman he had nothing on his person.

Inasmuch as the inspectors had found in the pockets and the lining of his overcoat about $50 worth of lace and dress trimmings, they naturally received the declaration with some suspicion.

Mr. Hardy did not lose his good humor, however, even after the biggest of his trunks had been opened. In this trunk, on the top, lay more than a dozen neckties, all of which were pinned as if they had just come from the haberdasher. Inspector Campbell lifted one of the shirts from the trunk and looked down into the neck of it. He found several dozen yards of lace folded in such a manner that a cursory observation would not have shown it.

Mr. Hardy, seeing the game was up, touched the inspector on the shoulder and said: "You needn't examine the rest of those shirts; they are all alike."

THOMAS MAY NAME BRYAN.*Nebraska's New York Manager Forecasts Convention Result.

New York, Sept. 3.—William J. Bryan is to visit these parts again in October, according to a statement sent out to-day by Harry W. Walker, who is looked upon as the representative in this city of Mr. Bryan.

After making an address on October 30 at the unveiling of the Bennett statue in New Haven, Mr. Bryan is to make a speaking tour through this State, under the auspices of the New York Progressive Democratic League.

The organization is one that was formed by Mr. Walker for the avowed purpose of fostering a movement for the nomination of Mr. Bryan next year.

One of the paragraphs of the statement sent out by Mr. Walker reads: "Harry W. Walker, who will have charge of Mr. Bryan's tour of this State, said to-day that the situation had developed already sufficiently to safely make these predictions:

"Former Gov. David R. Francis will be the permanent chairman of the next Democratic National Convention.

"Augustus Thomas will present Mr. Bryan's name to the convention.

"Mr. Bryan will be nominated by acclamation, and former Congressman T. D. Sullivan will be chairman of the Democratic National Convention."

BURNS AS DID JOAN OF ARC.*Woman Believed She Had Been Commanded to Die Like French Girl.

Ottawa, Sept. 3.—Imagining that the Lord had commanded her to share the fate of Joan of Arc, Mrs. Joseph La Londe, of St. Lazare, a small French-Canadian village near Val-de-Rouge, burned herself to death Sunday on a funeral pyre of her own making. While her relatives were at high mass she built a pyre from fence logs and tree branches, undressed herself entirely, and climbed upon the pile, to which she set fire.

People coming out of church saw the smoke and the woman's clothes hanging on branches of nearby trees. Her body, partly consumed, had fallen from the pyre. She left letters explaining why she committed the terrible deed.

TWO CONSPIRATORS HANGED.*Convicted of Plotting Against the Life of the Czar.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 3.—Nikitenko, Purkin, and Naumoff, condemned to death August 23, on conviction of having plotted against the life of the Czar last May, were hanged at dawn to-day. They met death calmly. Nikitenko and Purkin refused to accept the last sacrament.

Boris Nikitenko was a retired naval lieutenant and the son of a colonel. He distinguished himself in the suppression of the mutiny on board the cruiser Otechakoff, at Sevastopol.

Naumoff is generally believed to have been mentally weak. He had tried seven times to commit suicide. He lived with his father, a telegraph operator, within the enclosure of the Peterhof palace, saw the Czar daily, and could have killed him at any time had he been so inclined.

TWO BOROUGHS 2,500,000.*Bronx and Manhattan Population

New York, Sept. 3.—The general directory for Manhattan and the Bronx has just been issued for the year ended August 1, 1907. The publishers estimate the population of the two boroughs now at 2,500,000.

The canvass of the city took ninety-six days.

STORM DARKENS LYNCHBURG.*Telephone, Lighting, and Car Serv-

Lynchburg, Va., Sept. 3.—One of the most violent thunderstorms ever experienced here swept over Lynchburg to-night. It continued an hour and forty minutes, during which time 3.2 inches of water fell.

Several hundred telephones were disabled by the electricity and the electric current throughout the city was off for two hours, the city being in darkness during that time and the street cars completely tied up.

WIFE READY TO GO*Mrs. Earle Arranges Details to Leave Husband.*NOT JEALOUS OF SUCCESSOR*Artist's Cast of Mate Credited with Having Referred to Proposed Taking of Leave on Steamship as "a Happy Little Party at the Pier."

New York, Sept. 3.—Mrs. Ferdinand Earle, the wife of an artist in Monroe, N. Y., who says she has agreed to step out of her position in her husband's household and get a divorce in France in order that he may marry another woman, who is already a guest in the house, drove down to the station at Monroe early to-day and took a train for New York.

After spending a few hours with Victor Earle, a brother of the artist, at his office, 200 West Seventy-second street, in arranging final details for her departure on the Holland-American Line steamer Ryndam to-morrow, Mrs. Earle went back to spend the last night under her husband's roof at Monroe.

When Mrs. Earle drove down from the Earle home, about a mile outside of Monroe, to catch the early train for New York, her husband lightly kissed her forehead, and the future Mrs. Earle waved her handkerchief.

To-day's was not the final farewell of the husband, his wife, and the wife-to-be, who have all entered into a mutual happiness compact. To-morrow at 2 o'clock the Ryndam sails from the Holland-American docks in Hoboken, and both the artist and his divinely-selected bride will be on hand to wish Mrs. Earle bon voyage and farewell.

No Tinge of Sadness.

From what Mr. Earle and his wife had to say when first seen by a reporter Monday night, it appears that to-morrow's parting at the dock will have no tinge of sadness. At least, Mr. Earle said that they were all to part good friends, and his wife assented to his statement.

The departure of Mrs. Earle's father in Paris seems in the eyes of the principals, to be but the natural initial incident in the pact of mutual understanding between the artist, his wife, and the woman he is going to marry when freed by divorce.

Mrs. Earle is credited with having referred to the incident of her departure as "a happy little party at the pier."

To-day the artist who claims to have worked out his own scheme of happiness and to have induced his wife to subscribe to it, even to the extent of freeing him for a union with one whom he believes to be his affinity, allowed interviewers to copy the poem upon which he has been working for two years.

Represents Loftiest Views.

The poem, he said, represented his loftiest views on the subject of divinity predestinated marriage. The verses Mr. Earle gave out for publication follow:

From the first kiss of April in the blood,
From the last tear upon its searful brow,
From the spirit's rebound altitude.

On from the bosom's deep beatitude,
Uprising like the water lily bud,
From white, thought, morn in common clay and mud,
The river of true marriage is renewed.

Its countless brooklets rise as in a dream,
And flow beyond the heights of youth.
Some driven in mighty tumult by strange passion;
Some led through winding fairland;
Tongly each dream closes to its own inevitable bed
Until the last sweet drop is sucked to heaven.

Concealed Identity of Woman.

Considerable speculation was indulged in to-day by friends of the Earles as to the identity of the woman who has been living in the artist's home for the past week or ten days and whom he is to marry eventually. Both Mr. and Mrs. Earle refused to divulge her name. A report from Bethlehem, Pa., where Mr. Earle said his future wife hailed from, said that no woman by the name assigned by some parties to the unknown third individual in the marriage compact was known there.

SENATOR MCCREARY
FOR LONG CRUISE*Opposition from Democrats
Unlikely, He Says.*WELL WORTH THE COST*Will Furnish Valuable Experience for the Navy.*Kentucky Believes the Lessons Derived by the Fleet's Trip to the Pacific Will Be of Immense Value.
Says His State Will Be for Bryan, and that There Will Be No Other Possible Presidential Nominee.

Senator James B. McCreary, of Kentucky, who, by virtue of the death of Senator Morgan, of Alabama, and the retirement of Senator Clark, of Montana, becomes the third ranking Democratic member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, does not believe the reports that the Democratic party has any intention of opposing the sending of the American fleet to the Pacific.

The Senator is in favor of the long cruise. He believes it will be good practice for the officers and men of the United States navy, and he cannot see wherein Japan can take offense.

"The United States has a great navy," said the Senator last night. "Our battle ships, excepting the Oregon, Wisconsin, and Nebraska, have heretofore cruised only in the Atlantic, and it seems proper that they should cruise also in the Pacific."

"I am in favor of sending, as proposed, eighteen battle ships and eight cruisers to the Pacific Ocean. They will attract the attention of the world, and the service will give our officers and men valuable experience, and test their qualifications and endurance."

Worth the Cost.

"Our battle ships and cruisers have to be somewhere, and the best place for a part of them for a few months of the year 1908 is in the Pacific, and the cost of maintaining them will not be more than double the cost of maintaining them in the Atlantic—the greatest increase of cost being for coal, and we will be amply repaid by benefits derived from the extra expense."

"The massing of our sea power on the Pacific will help to insure peace, although there is not the slightest prospect of war, and that part of the world will probably in the future be the theater of great events and enlarged commerce, our naval force should be conspicuous, and should be larger than that of any other power on that ocean."

"The fleet sent to the Pacific must necessarily return to the Atlantic in a few months. The day may come when the United States will be a two-ocean sea power," but we have not yet reached that day. The Atlantic now has many yards and docks, coaling stations and strategic bases sufficient for the maintenance and support of a great fleet. The Pacific must have all these things."

Will Paraphrase Object Lesson.

"If sixteen battle ships and eight cruisers are sent there, an important object lesson will be furnished, and it will awaken our people to the needs of the Pacific Coast, and will show the inadequacy of present conditions on that coast."

"Sending this fleet to the Pacific cannot in the remotest degree be a menace to Japan, for the itinerary of the fleet as proposed is to start at Hampton Roads, then to Trinidad, then to Rio Janeiro, and to Sandy Point, all on the Atlantic side, and from Sandy Point through the Straits of Magellan to Callao, and then to Magdalena Bay, and then to San Francisco, and our fleet on this route would not at any time be within five thousand miles of any of the ports of Japan."

"In addition to this the war experts and statesmen of Japan are fully aware that we are not making any primary preparations, such as the construction of docks, coaling stations, supply stations, etc., and the crime of our fleet will not be misconstrued by Japan or any other nation."

The Senator will remain in Washington for two or three days, and will return to Kentucky by Saturday. He declared that, in his opinion, the Kentucky will cast her votes in the nominating convention in 1908 and at the November election for William Jennings Bryan.

Bryan Sure to Be Nominee.

"Bryan will be the nominee, because there is no one running against him," declares Senator McCreary.

"The great questions of the campaign will be governmental regulation of railroad rates, revision of the tariff, destruction of trusts, and the question of the interference of Federal courts with States' rights. The matter of a Southern man for the Vice Presidency, too, is one that is being much discussed by the entire country."

"So far as Kentucky is concerned, the entire Democratic State ticket, from Governor to Commissioner of Agriculture, will be elected. Both Democrats and Republicans have opened their campaigns and the contest promises to be a warm one. Secretary Taft has made a speech at Lexington for the Republicans, and Bryan has agreed to make six speeches for the Democrats. Distinguished speakers living in the State and out of it will take part in the campaign and things promise to be quite busy from now on."

Senator McCreary will not return to Washington again until some time in November.
